

MR. SEWARD AT AUBURN.

His Views on the Election and the Crisis.

THE POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENT. STATESMANLIKE AND PHILOSOPHICAL SPEECH.

Mr. Seward, on his way to Auburn, N. Y., to see the President, was met by a large number of his friends at the depot. He was in the best of health and spirits, and his speech was one of the most statesmanlike and philosophical ever heard in this country. He spoke for an hour and a half, and his words were full of wisdom and courage. He said that the Government was in a critical position, and that the people must stand by it to the end. He said that the Union was the only hope of the people, and that they must not allow it to be broken up. He said that the Government was doing all that it could for the people, and that they must not complain. He said that the people must have faith in the Government, and that they must not be misled by the enemies of the Union. He said that the Government was the only power that could save the Union, and that they must not allow it to be weakened. He said that the people must stand by the Government, and that they must not allow it to be overthrown.
